The importance of play

Play isn't just fun — it's one of the most powerful ways children learn and connect with the people they love. When you spend even a few minutes each day playing with your child, you're helping them build confidence, language skills, problem-solving abilities, and emotional resilience. Most importantly, play strengthens your bond, showing your child they are valued, listened to, and supported.

Whether it's a board game, imaginative play, kicking a ball outside, or simply drawing together, these small moments make a big difference. So this week, we encourage all families to set aside a little time for play — it's time well spent!
